

Professor Emelia Amoako-Asiedu
Associate Professor
Head/Department of Marketing
Ghana Communication Technology University
Business School

Prof. Emelia Amoako-Asiedu holds a Doctor of Philosophy in Public Administration and Policy Management, a Master of Philosophy in Public Administration as well as a Master's in Public Administration from the University of Ghana. She obtained her bachelor's degree in management studies and a diploma in Education from the University of Cape Coast. She also holds a post graduate certificate in Occupational Safety Health and Environment from GIMPA as well as a post graduate diploma in Organization Development from the University of Cape Coast. She also holds a certificate in Managing Change and Organisational Transitions from the Maastricht School of Management, Netherlands as well as a certificate in Disaster Management from the United States Telecommunications Institute. She recently completed a Professional Masters in Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR). She is a member of International Research Society for Public Management, the International Public Policy Association as well as the American Society of Public Administrators.

She worked with the Ghana Telecommunication Company for fifteen years, serving in various capacities such as in the Human Resource Management department. She taught at the Business school of the Wisconsin International University College and was the Head of Department for the Department of Management studies, winning the best teacher award in 2014. She worked as the Head of the Department of General Studies at the newly established University of Environment and Sustainable Development between 2020 and 2021, where she spearheaded the development of university-required courses relevant for all programmes. She currently lectures at the Business School of Ghana Communication Technology University, and she heads the Department of Marketing. At GCTU she has served on various boards and committees, and she led her team to develop five (5) cutting edge programmes in Digital Marketing from Undergraduate to PhD levels.

Her research area is in Public Sector Performance Management, Leadership and Employee Engagement, Public Policy Management, Occupational Health and Safety Management and Gender Issues. Recently, she has collaborated on research in Entrepreneurship and Sustainability. She has made several presentations of her work in these research areas at peer reviewed conferences at both local and international levels. She is a member of the International Public Policy Association (IPPA), International Research Society for Public Management (IRSPM), and the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA). She has 27 publications in peer reviewed journals and 3 book chapters.

Prof. Emelia Amoako Asiedu has over 20 years' experience in training and facilitation skills. She has prepared course modules and training manuals for executives in top organisations locally and internationally.

Aside from lecturing and facilitating in the university, Prof. Amoako Asiedu is a reviewer for distinguished journals in Emerald, Sage and other top publishers.